CLASS HISTORY

In September 1938, as 69 inexperienced but very determined Freshmen, we started a new life, one that was very different from any we had ever before experienced. Joyce Bolinger was elected President with Miss Bauch as class adviser. We did very little that was outstanding that year. Remember how we disliked the new ruling about "loitering in the halls. Then there was our ninth grade party when the boys sat in one corner and the girls in the other. We've certainly changed, haven't we, classmates?

In order that we wouldn't be too soon forgotten we left a gift of records in an album that would always be cherished by those coming after us.

Then came our Sophomore year with Bill Cutting as President and Mr. Hackney, with his helpful advice and sound judgment as class adviser. We were a little awed by the prospect of being in Senior High. A little hopeful and expectant too, for we wanted to follow in the footsteps of the class of '40.. They had a high scholastic record and the ability to work together and get things done. The J-Hop and Dick Jergens at Crystal was to have a very decided effect on our lives the coming year. Needless to say, school spirit wasn't shown at the J-Hop and the task of being able to put on a successful dance the following year was thrust upon us.

In our Junior year Bill Cutting was still the able and efficient president. All year we worked and slaved with one objective in mind--make enough money to put on a banquet and J-Hop that Juniors and Seniors would want to attend, and not dash off after the Grand March to answer the calls of melodie rhythms elsewhere.

Mixers, sponsoring shows, sweater dances, bake sales, selling candy at the games all these were a part of our money-making plan.

The Junior Jump was the last big dance before the J-Hop (complete with hula dancers in the floor show.)

The dramatic highlight of the year was "June Mad" which was a financial success.

After months of working and waiting, both to make money and get a date, our J-Hop was finally over. Such a feeling of utter hopelessness when we no longer had

CLASS WILL

We, being the Seniors of Paw Paw High School, located in the County of Van Buren, the State of Michigan, and the United States of America, discover that our existence as Seniors is short, and as a result, being of sound mind and body, of our own free will, do establish a permanent will as follows:

I, Joyce Bolinger bequeath my beauty to Anne Oas.

I, Virgil Areaux leave to Tom Chaffee my speed (on the baseball diamond).

I, Betty Lou Brightsman leave the essay "On Dozing" by Benchley to some sleepy Junior.

I, Lewis Burns leave my long windy speeches on Inter-American Relations to Lewis Williams.

I, Richard Burns leave my ten acres and my pickle patch to Bob Glidden.

I, Dail Bush leave my bright remarks to Felix Racette to keep up the good work.

I, Barbara Church bequeath my appendix, malaria, and strep throat to anyone who can take 'em.

I, Joyce Cleveland leave that voice known as the ediphone to any poor soul who doesn't know what he is getting into.

I, Bill Dayton leave my springing gait and wide-awake personality to Wayne Chase.

We, Bill Cutting and Arlene Scott are not leaving anything. We are leaving together.

I, Louis Dellapella leave my bass viol and bass horn to Bobby Abrams.

I, Audrey Dennis leave my ability to raise money to the "Ways and Means Committee" of the Junior Class.

I, Melvin Ehas leave my beautiful eyes and gift of gab to Jack Walters.

I, Irene Fortune leave my bashful nature and shy glances to Janice Gancer.

I, Frieda Fritz refuse to leave anything. I want him myself.

I, Virginia Gancer leave my domestic ability to anyone else who is interested in home-making and keeping a husband.

CLASS PROPHECY

We the Seniors, having received our passports to life, are about to embark upon the Ship of the Future. Taking off from Lindquist Field in the year 1942 we zoom through the years arriving at Fantasia Field in 1962, where we have a two hour wait while our ship is being refueled to carry us on to our final destinations in life.

In a hurry as always, I dash out of the ship to acquire the latest copy of the Adventures of Super Man. Settling myself comfortably in the lounge of the airport, I then try to concentrate upon the literature that I had purchased. However I am distracted by the first lady of the stage, Patrice Racette, who is busily engaged in learning her lines for the greatest role of her career as Lady Macbeth. She seems to be having trouble with the speech, "Out damn spot. Out I say." I can understand why Pat would because Warren Sundstrand, proprietor of the "Longer-Time-to-Pay, Bang-the-Dents-Out-While-You-Wait-So-Your-Parents-Won 't-Know-the-Difference-Garage" is trying to decide whether the title of his autobiography should be "Thirty-Eight Years in the Dog House" or "Life With Fido."

I return to my reading but soon give up in despair as I find that observing my fellow passengers is more exciting than the exploits of Super Man.

Glancing around the room I notice that Admiral Keith Holcomb of the United States Navy and Lorene Mielke, who is possessor of the title, "The Worlds Most Glamorous Secretary", are betting on which playboy will be the tenth husband of Mary Jane Stine, successor to Peggy Hopkins Joyce. Watching the bet are Mr. and Mrs. William Cutting. Mrs. Cutting is the former Arlene Scott, who is now breaking her finger nails while doing her household duties. Her husband is manager of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company in the thriving community of Oh Gosh, in the State of Bewilderment.

Coming through the door is our stewardess, Irene Fortune, who is conferring with Doctor Hazel Mortenson and Betty Lou Brightsman, army nurse, on the proper method of hastily opening a window for an air sick passenger.

CLASS PROPHECY

Off in the corner I notice that Alan Thoms, head cartoonist for the New York Times is sketching Louis Werderick, President of the Lovers of Lazy Loafing Society, who is practicing his profession, loafing.

From another corner comes a melodious refrain uttered by the silver throated nightingale of the concert stage, Madam Joyce Bolinger, who is trying to go over her husband's latest composition and, at the same time, keep an eye on their two children.

The music lovers of our group, Louis Dellapella, Director of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra; Vivian Greenwald, concert trumpapist, who has invested her earnings in the Horsey Hoofers Stable; Roger Markle, who has returned to the scene of his musical inspiration as Director of the Paw Paw High School Band; and Marguerite Gleason, who has just returned from studying violin abroad and is now carving a name for herself on the concert stage (not to be taken literally); are discussing the merits of a Hemidemisemiquaver (I had to look it up too).

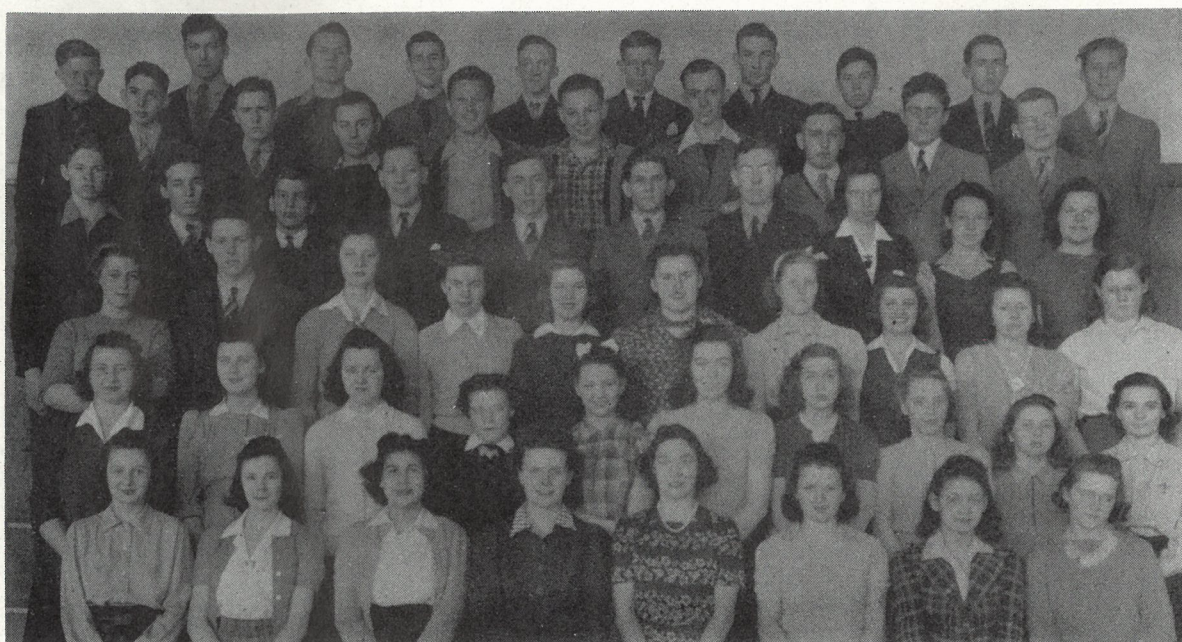

As my gaze wanders to the window I observe that Madmoiselle Evelaine, alias Evelyn Owen, who operates the world renown Evelaine Beauty Salon on 5th Avenue, is conversing with Charlotte Wilker, eminent hair stylist and Virginia Gancer, head beautician at the S. M. S. (Schmidt, Madison and Simmons) Studios in Hollywood on installing air plane motors in beauty shops to create that "wind blown effect."

Also out on the field, I see that Bill Dayton, successor to Jessie Owens as the world's fastest sprinter, is practicing while his manager, Arthur Johnson, who has made a fortune on his tonic that is guaranteed to grow a Clark Gable mustache in ten days, is timing him.

Cra--a--a-s--s--s-h. What can that noise ever be. Well if it isn't Frieda Fritz, who carries a set of Tinker Toys with her wherever she goes so that she can demonstrate her ideas on a "super steel structure" bridge to all who might be interested. John Reeves, her engineering competitor has just shown Frieda the

The class of '43 has been concerned mainly with the raising of money to put on the annual J-Hop and banquet in honor of the Seniors.

The numerous ways for raising the money were selling basketball schedule pencils, Christmas cards, and candy and gum at basketball and football games; the sponsoring of the Valentine and Victory dances; and having bake sales.

"Ever Since Eve," the Junior Class play, directed by Mrs. Ethel West was very successful. Fifteen members of the class participated.

Mr. J. C. Brickner, as the class sponsor, has ably directed the many activities of the busy Junior Class.

One of the outstanding meetings of the Sophomore Class this year was "The Hare and Hound Chase" in November to Maple Isle.

The two main projects of the year have been the Paper Collecting Campaign and the selling of magazine subscriptions, the proceeds of which went for buying bonds and stamps.

The main event of the year was a class party which had for its motive the military divisions of the armed forces.

The Paw Paw High School Honor Society was organized in January 1942. The Society is composed of sophomore, junior, and senior members who have completed one semester of work in the Paw Paw Senior High School.

Scholarship is one of the bases for selection to the Honor Society. The student must have at least a "B" average or a "C" average provided a student also excels in one branch of learning and has the endorsement of all his teachers for earnest effort. In addition to scholarship the following character qualities are considered as bases for selection: dependability, cooperation, honesty, kindness, promptness, school pride, unselfish service, courage, tolerance, and self reliance. These are especially important as the student body nominate people on these bases. After the nomination of the students, the names of the nominees are presented to the faculty.

Any student receiving ten per cent of the vote of the student body is nominated. Candidates must receive at least five votes of the faculty in order to become a member of this organization. Membership is for one semester.

The purpose of this society is to give aid to the school and the individual student. The members hope to build up scholarship, leadership and cooperation.

The main undertaking during the year was the Glee Club's Concert in May. For this many special numbers were worked on and given. The Girl's Sextette and some soloists helped with the concert.

The Sextette is one of the busiest groups connected with the Girl's Glee Club. During the year they helped in programs at the Coterie, PTA meetings and at Churches or wherever they would be wanted to help fill a program.

This year the Paw Paw High School Orchestra has the largest membership since its organization nine years ago.

Activities of the orchestra have been many and varied. Its first appearance last fall was at the Methodist church assisting in the re-dedication service. Besides playing for the usual high school plays, orchestra members through the medium of their small ensembles have played for Farm Bureau meetings and numerous banquets.

It is the aim of the orchestra to enrich the lives of its members and to be of real service to the school and community.

One of our members, Hilda Ziolkowski, violist, entered the District Music Festival, receiving an all A, First Division rating.

Senior Members and Years Experience: Frieda Fritz (8), Arthur Simmons (5), Louis Dellapella (4), Marguerite Gleason (5), Vivian Greenwald (3), Miriam Passmore (7), Lewis Burns (3), Jane Moldenhauer (1).

Our football season opened with seven lettermen back. The team was stronger than last year and has promises of being even better next fall as only three lettermen will be lost through graduation.

Paw Paw won the first homecoming game in four years.

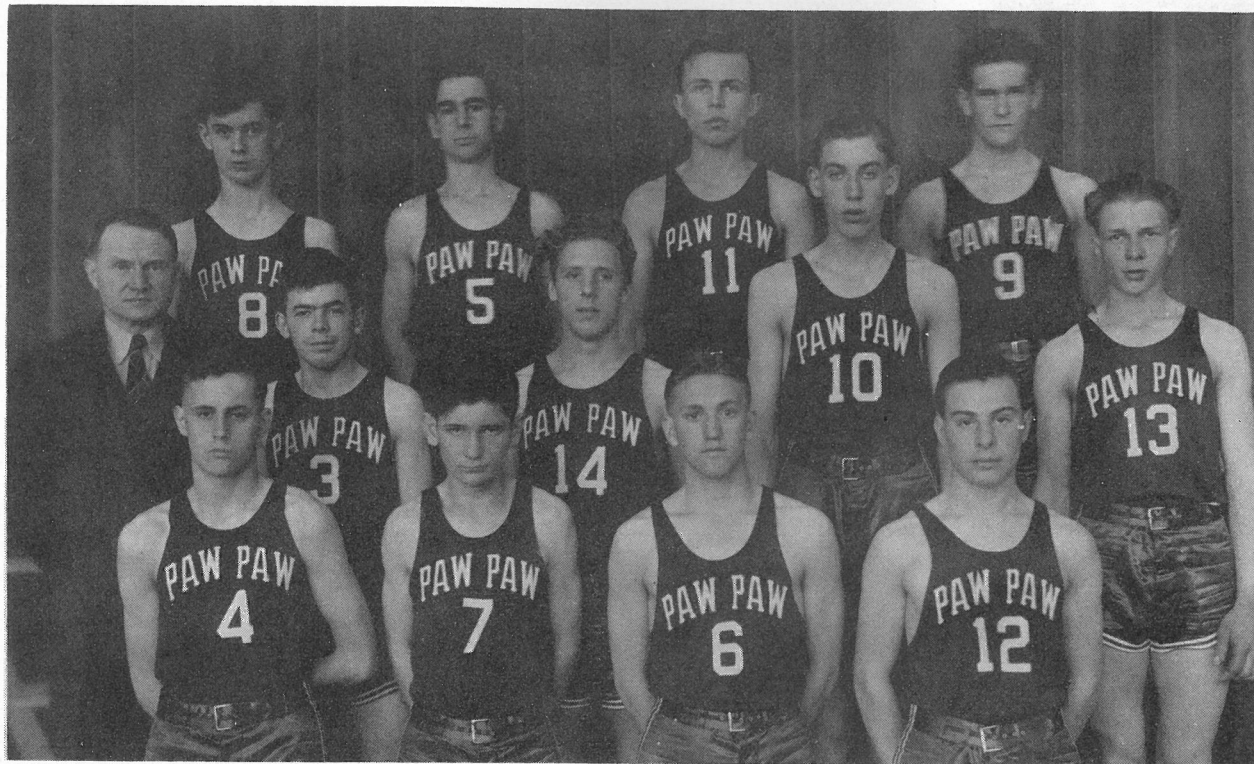

Sixteen boys were awarded first team letters, and nine, reserve letters.

With only four lettermen returning from last year's squad, prospects for a successful baseball season were none too bright. Other promising prospects for this year's team were Lambert, catcher, Grehl, second base, Holman, right field, Addams, pitcher, and Potter, third base.

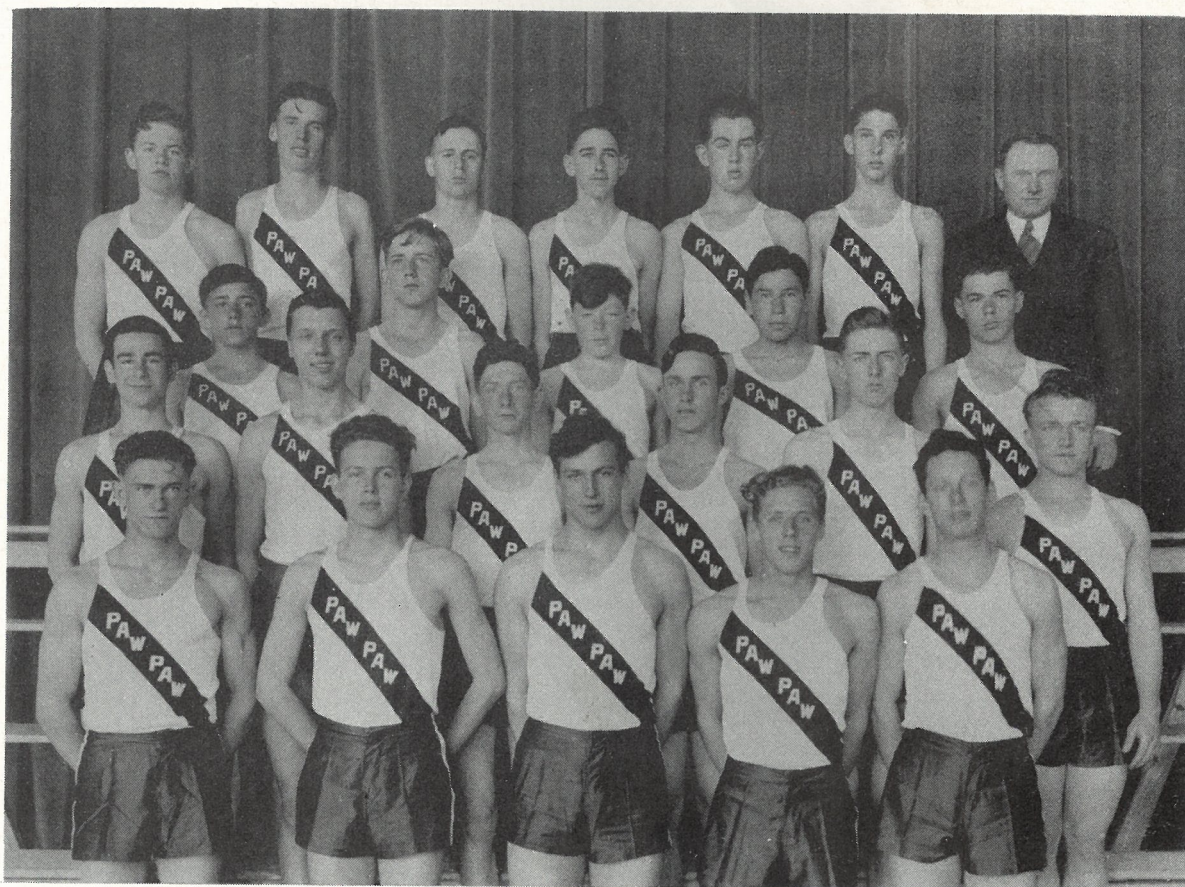

John McCook, a recent member of one of Western Michigan College's outstanding teams, has taken over the coaching duties in place of "Tiny" Irons and Mr. Kribbs.

main weakness of the structure. Consequently, the crash. This disturbance seems to annoy Jane Moldenhauer, who with her baby voice and sweet manner has become the second Singing Lady. She and her efficient business manager, Florence Majchrowicz, are reviewing the script for Jane's next broadcast.

As you might expect, William Christopher Sands Jr., who operates an Escort Service (by himself) in Chicago is trying to overawe that satirical teacher of speech, Peg Smith, with his smooth, sophisticated, suavity. Obviously Peg is not devastated by his charms.

Miriam Passmore is re-reading her best seller, "How to do Trig. in 10 Easy Lessons", hoping that she may gain enough information from it to keep ahead of her math. students.

In the farthest corner of the lounge I see that Evelyn Whisler is giving Ward Pohly, the editor of "Monsieur--The Magazine for Smart Young Men", quotations, on a full page ad in the "Flashes."

Tom Kroth, manager of the International Hitch Hiker's Ass'n. is pacing the floor giving dictation while his secretary, Louise Krause, is following him trying to get all of it.

Victor Muller and Robert McNabb are on the verge of fisticuffs because Bob claims that Vic is trying to bankrupt his undertaking business by advertising that smoking Muller's Corn Cob Pipes increases the longevity of a man's life.

The other business woman of our group, Stephanie Weglarz, President of the National Women's Business League; Beverly Lanphear, Vice President; Arliss Soule, Secretary; and Joyce Cleveland, Treasurer; are seated around the desk looking at the latest edition of their weekly magazine, "The Supremacy of Woman", while planning the details of a revolution to overthrow the power of men in the world of business.

Melvin Ehas and Rex Rock, two magnates in the farming world, are comparing the grade of wheat raised by each in the past year, and trying to figure out a plan, whereby the general odor of the farm can be improved.

Evelyn Hoodmaker is combing the hair of one of her little twin boys, who are dressed up in Major's uniforms just like their daddy wears.

CLASS PROPHECY

The sound of raised voices attracts my attention. Well, if it isn't the co-editors of the Church and Dennis Seasonal Catalogue which is now running Sears and Roebuck out of business. The editors may be remembered as Barbara Church and Audrey Dennis. It has been rumored that the catalogue will go out of circulation within the year because it seems that Barbara and Audrey just haven't been able to add up their bills, and they are now nearly ten-thousand dollars in debt.

John Griesmaier, President of the famous Walgreen Corporation, is looking over the report for the fiscal year of 1962. He finds the report so favorable that he has decided to add two cherries to each double-decker ice cream cone.

Virgil Areaux, manager of the Alpena Hotshots Ball Team is talking over the old times when he used to play baseball for old Paw Paw High with Ted Maciejewski, an alumnus of West Point and the present Chief of Staff.

I see that Margaret Simon is signing a contract with Evelyn Lawson to teach the children in Evelyn's orphanage to roller skate.

Jim Glidden, holder of the record for a non-stop flight from the North Pole to the South Pole is looking over the plans submitted by that master mechanical detail draftsman, Dail Bush, for a space ship to take them to the Planet Venus.

CLASS PROPHECY

Carl German is trying to perfect his invention of a refrigerator that is guaranteed to make a heat resisting ice cube in nothing flat.

In the left corner of the lounge, Dick Burns, proprietor of the Waldorf Astoria in New York, who works at his hobby as Chef of his hotel, is talking with Lewis Burns, Horse Doctor, about supplying meat for his dining room. Lottie Hoina, the female Duncan Hines, is telling them that she is planning on putting the hotel on her list of preferred eating places.

Thomas Lambert, the most illustrious congressman in the United States, just stated in an interview that he gains all of his information from "The Little Red Book" that he has had since his high school days.

My thoughts return to the Super Man, but I am interrupted by our pilot, Mr. Hackney, (better known to his 59 kids as "Pop") who just informed us that the ship was ready to take off again. I am not a bit worried or nervous for I know that our ship is in good hands. Our pilot will guide us by his understanding, kindly advice, and wisdom, through the years to come until we attain our highest aspirations and reach our final destinations in life.

CLASS HISTORY

anything to look forward to or work for.

Oh yes, we got our rings that year too. However, some of them have changed hands.

SENIORS, the name we had long wanted to be called. And I'm sure there are many of us who would just as soon be Sophomores again. Ted Maciejewski has been our President this year, and a mighty fine one, too. It has been a busy year and almost everybody has settled down to serious studying. Our worth while project this year was the Red Cross Drive. In spite of our hard labor we wouldn't have attained success if it hadn't been for Miss Nyland's leadership.

As much as we hated the thought of being forgotten in Junior High, we hate even worse the prospect of being forgotten by our under class-mates this year. We have also thought that we have a patriotic duty to fulfill, so combining both our duty and desire to be remembered, we have left a $100 Bond designated as a Student Loan fund. We sincerely hope that other classes will follow suit.

We were the first class to start a "Senior Night" which we hope will become a tradition in our school. "Senior Night" was the final social function of the Senior Class. After the dinner we listened to the will, prophecy, and history of our class.

As the Wappaw goes to print we are anticipating a Junior-Senior Banquet and J-Hop. Then the usual round of graduation exercises that will end our high school careers. It will be the end of our high school days, but the memories of them will live with us always. We will be proud to be among those who have graduated from Paw Paw High School.
